Reference Manager

Academic research is one of the concerns of professors and students. Increasing of publications and the high of articles published in a field of science has lead to confusion in the management of articles in order to cite it. Therefore, researchers need tools that can be used in the process of creating a library of articles, organizing, and managing documents. These softwares are referred to as "reference managers".

Mendeley

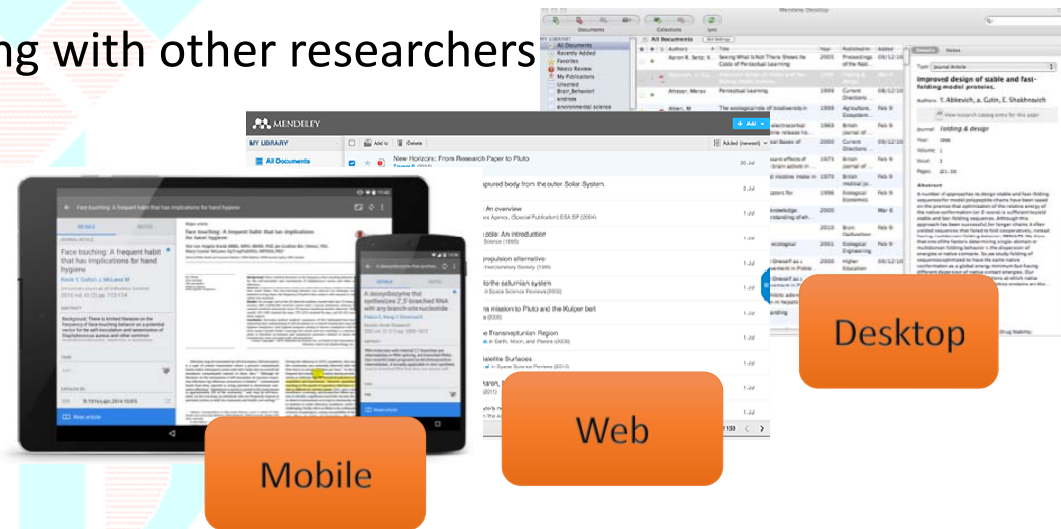

- Product of Elsevier
- A Free Reference Manager
- An Academic Social Network
- Enables collaboration and knowledge sharing with other researchers
- Cross – Platform(Win/Mac/Linux)
- More than 1600 types of referencing style

Liver Cancer: Connections with Obesity, Fatty Liver, and Cirrhosis.

Marengo A¹, Rosso C¹, Bugianesi E¹.

Author information

Abstract

The burden of hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC), the most common form of liver cancer, is steadily growing because of the increasing prevalence of obesity and nonalcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD) are replacing viral- and alcohol-related liver disease as major pathogenic factors. Worrying aspects of these new risk factors are their large spread in the general population and their link with cirrhosis. HCC may be the presenting feature of an asymptomatic nonalcoholic steatohepatitis (NASH), the progressive form of NAFLD. HCC risk connected to metabolic factors has been underestimated so far, and a poorer surveillance has prevented an adequate treatment. Systemic and hepatic molecular mechanisms involved in obesity- and NAFLD-induced hepatocarcinogenesis as well as potential early markers of HCC are being extensively investigated. This review summarizes current evidence linking obesity, NAFLD and liver cancer, discusses its clinical impact and describes the main mechanisms underlying this complex relationship.
